Introduction

Because individual farms were isolated, the first families in the area customarily had their own graveyards or burial sites near their homes. Following the Civil War, in 1866, a new church was built to replace the original sanctuary which had been destroyed by the invading army. Five years later, in 1871, Pauline James White Gayle was buried in the church yard. There was a feeling that the church property was hallowed ground since it had been dedicated and consecrated to God Almighty, and that it was appropriate as a final resting place. Furthermore, most residents then had English heritage and their ancestors had been buried or entombed in surrounding church yards; some were even laid to rest within or beneath the church itself. In January 1882, Mary Ann Crockett was buried in the church yard followed by Virginia Ann Mills Ironmonger in August of the same year. Thus the Zion Cemetery began on the original half acre tract where the 1866 church was built.

As the Zion enrollment increased, other parcels of land were added to the original half acre. The cemetery now extends from Seaford Road to a small branch off Goose Creek. Due to a trend in recent years, cemeteries with perpetual upkeep in Newport News and Hampton have attracted many Seaford resident families.

At present the church cemetery is managed by The Cemetery Committee of Zion United Methodist Church. The continued maintenance of it is funded by memorial donations, returns from investments (bonds), and contributions from families of deceased relatives.

Zion United Methodist Church Cemetery continues in constant use and is the final resting place for many devoted Methodists. Adjoining the church property is a small cemetery known as the Ballentine Cemetery. The plots in the Ballentine Cemetery are privately owned. However, most of the burials there are of Zion United Methodist Church members or persons closely related to them. In recent years, an arrangement has been effected between these owners and the church cemetery committee. As a result, the maintenance of the two operates as one entity.

Zion United Methodist Church

In 1822, a group of interested persons in Crab Neck, Virginia made an effort to organize a Methodist Church in this area. Land was given and a board of trustees was formed. This was the beginning of Zion Church. The deed was recorded in York County.

The land was given by Thomas and Anna Stroud, and William and Frances Stroud to Joseph Crockett, James Ironmonger, Cyrus B. James, Robert Thompkins, Charles Ironmonger, William Guy, and William Morgan, trustees, in trust ... with boundaries marked ... to them and their successors in office forever ... that they shall erect and build thereon, a house or place of worship for the use of the members of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the USA. They gave "a half acre of land." This indenture was made December 20th 1822.

Zion became a part of the Williamsburg circuit, James River District, whose pastor in 1822 was Waddell Johnson. It has been generally accepted that much of the preaching of the early Methodists in local communities was carried on by local preachers, under the guidance and leadership of the circuit minister. One such local preacher was the Rev. Cyrus B. James, born in that part of Gloucester County that later became Mathews. He married in Mathews County in 1811 and located in Poquoson, York County. He was licensed and made a local deacon in 1811. He took a leading part in the establishment of Zion Church, being one of the first trustees, as has already been mentioned in the deed. He was one of the first preachers, if not the first, to hold services at Zion Church, coming by Boat from Poquoson to Crab Neck.

Zion Church 1866

Through the guidance and inspiration of the Holy Spirit, a building was erected in 1822-23, on land given by William and Thomas Stroud, to house Zion Methodist Church, part of the Williamsburg Circuit. Between 1861 and 1865, the building was destroyed by the Northern Army. Records state that on November 10, 1866, the fourth Quarterly Conference met in Zion Church in another building constructed with lumber salvaged from a dismantled army barracks.

Zion Church 1902

In the fall of 1902, the York Circuit was split by the Annual Conference. Zion and Providence composed the York Circuit; Poquoson churches composed the East York Circuit. The parsonage in Cockletown was retained for the York Circuit minister. Considerable growth in numbers, programs, and ministry resulted with the close pastoral contact of a smaller circuit. By the end of 1902, it was necessary to enlarge the building; an additional wing on each side of the rectangular building changed its shape to the form of a cross.

Zion Church 1922

On December 22, 1922 the 100th anniversary of Zion Church went virtually unnoticed largely due to the adjustments of a new ministerial appointment six weeks prior. The District Superintendent endorsed the plans in October 1946 to build "a new house of worship and an education building on a lot across the road from the building now being used by the congregation." After ground breaking on a lot given from the G. A. Wornom estate by his family, construction began on August 23, 1949. The Zion congregation occupied the new building for the first time on Sunday, May 20, 1951. In October 1951, a recommendation was carried to the Virginia Annual Conference that Zion Church become a station and leave the York Circuit. At the close of the session the circuit pastor was appointed to Zion Church no longer part of the circuit.

After ten years as an independent charge with steady growth, ground was broken for an educational building in April 1961. Zion United Methodist Church continues to proclaim the gospel that is ever new.

The Bell

Here in the Zion United Methodist Churchyard, on a lovely mount at the end of the front walkway, is the bell that rang from the steeple of Zion Church from 1920 until 1951.

When I was a child, in my Reading Book, there was a story about a stove named "Hershvogle." This stove related its life time experiences. If one could but recall or if the bell could speak, a lengthy and interesting story could be written about Zion's bell.

Mr. Buck Graves was the sexton that I remember most. He was Delancy Graves and he and his wife "Miss Lou" - Lula - are buried toward the east and front of the cemetery. A part of his responsibility was tolling the bell when funerals were held in church. So, he avidly watched for the procession either coming from Wornom's store or else headed from Grafton and approaching Mattie Curtis' corner. That bell tolled until the family was seated inside the church. Then when the services were transferred to the grave site, the bell tolled until the final "Amen."

This was a custom most likely forgotten by the few remaining residents of that period and it would probably be considered weird by the present generation. The "tolling of the bell" is an old English custom and it added to the somberness of the occasion.

The bell of Zion Church peeled out to the community every Sunday morning thirty minutes before services were supposed to start. This was to remind people that Sunday School classes for all ages would soon be in progress. Three-fourths of the families of Seaford attended Sunday School regularly. A large number remained for the 11:00 A.M. worship service.

But there was a period when Zion Church was on a circuit so the worship services were held alternately at 11:00 A.M. and 3:00 P.M. on Sundays. Again that bell rang a half hour before services as a "call to worship."

When a Sunday evening service like the Epworth League, or a special church meeting was scheduled, the bell rang out. Some people wondered about the reason for this, but always they knew that the church was alive and some religious activity was in progress,

When the congregation moved to the new building across the road, it was most fitting for the bell to be preserved. It had served the community well for it had "rung out a message"—sometime sad, most times glad, and had kept Seaford residents aware of a worship center where they could commune with one another and with their God!

The Ballentine Cemetery

The oldest records of land for the Ballentine Cemetery date from 1654. On May 13, 1654, a patent was issued to Lt. Col. John Cheesman and John Adleston for three hundred acres lying on the north side of Cheesman's Neck and on Baytree Neck adjoining the land of Mr. Beale (Patent Book 3, p.10). John Adleston's daughter married John Rogers. The Rogers' land then reached from Baytree Neck, which is now at the end of Seaford Road, to part of the Stroud land, which became Zion United Methodist Cemetery, adjacent to the Ballentine Cemetery.

The Patent Issued to John Cheesman and John Adleston in 1654

The oldest records of land for the Ballentine Cemetery date from 1654. On May 13, 1654, a patent was issued to Lt. Col. John Cheesman and John Adleston for three hundred acres lying on the north side of Cheesman's Neck and on Baytree Neck adjoining the land of Mr. Beale (Patent Book 3, p.10). John Adleston's daughter married John Rogers. The Rogers' land then reached from Baytree Neck, which is now at the end of Seaford Road, to part of the Stroud land, which became Zion United Methodist Cemetery, adjacent to the Ballentine Cemetery.

On July 20, 1778, Benjamin Wright purchased an 110 acre plantation from William Adleston Rogers. This plantation was part of the land granted to John Adleston in 1654. Benjamin Wright's land was on the east side of Goose Creek opposite Belvin's Point, which is now Cheadle Point. Benjamin died in 1794 and his estate was divided among his children. His son Benjamin Jr., born August 13, 1775, lived on the northwest corner of the plantation, land that would contain the Ballentine Cemetery. Benjamin Jr. died at age twenty eight, and his farm was sold. His brother John, born in 1783, bought back the family land. John Wright died in 1848, and his wife, Martha Belvin Wright, died in 1850.

Joseph Crockett purchased the remaining Rogers - Wright Plantation on Goose Creek. In 1858, Whittington Crockett and his wife Mary sold to Thomas H. Mills, a lot of land near Zion Church, containing about eight and one-third acres, known as the "Wright Land" (York Co. Deed Bk. 14, p.310). Thomas Mills was born in Accomack County in 1824 (1850 Census, York Co.). He married Martha Virginia Hopkins, daughter of William and Euphania Ironmonger Hopkins, on June 22, 1854. Thomas died after 1873, and Martha Mills married secondly Jud Merrell from New York. She died January 20, 1916, and she is interred in the church cemetery.

The Mills family lost several small children, and they were buried in a graveyard on the farm. Later, Thomas Mills was also laid to rest there. The burial place has been described thus: "Located under large walnut tree at the back of the field on the Mills' homeplace. This burial site bordered on the cove above the west branch of Goose Creek by the Zion Methodist Church Cemetery in Seaford (formerly Crab Neck). This grave was marked for more than fifty years, but no permanent head-stone was erected and the grave is now lost" (Ironmonger and Connections, Elizabeth Ironmonger, 1971, p. 410).

Sarah Jane Mills, their oldest child, married Ethelburt Crockett January 15, 1875, and they resided with her parents. Later the land was purchased by the Crocketts. Sarah Jane Mills Crockett died November 9, 1904, and Ethelburt Crockett's death was May 2, 1907. Both were buried in the western section of the old church yard. The Crockett's third child, Mary Louise, born September 21, 1883, married Samuel Hogg on December 26, 1905. Each of her siblings, as they married, had their homes elsewhere. So the Hogs remained in the original Wright-Mills-Crockett residence.

In later years, the Hogs sold small sections of the farm, but spent their entire lives there. They had no children but they reared two of Mrs. Hogg's nephews, Joseph and John Ballentine. Thus it was that John Ballentine came to possess the portion of the farm that was laid out into plots and developed as Ballentine Cemetery. The Hogg dwelling was located just south of the cemetery.

As a point of interest, since Thomas Mills, who died after 1873, left no will, and some of his descendants settled in New York and various places, a clear title to the land for the cemetery and other parcels was not finalized until 1976. The heirs of Thomas Mills began selling their shares in 1906, and finally all were sold and recorded except the shares of Eugenia Mills. She married Albert Totten and moved to New York. The deed of 1904 was found in the York County vault and filed February 1976 (York County Deed Bk. 274, p. 731). One may safely conclude that there was a medium size family graveyard or private cemetery here beside the original Zion United Methodist Church Cemetery where these were interred:

Whose Grave Was It? Thelma Hansford

During all those years of my childhood, there was one grave in Zion United Methodist churchyard that was unique. At the head a wooden cross, probably four feet high, had been erected and the end was marked with an oar of equal height. This grave was very close to the front fence around the early yard. It was on the eastern side of the building and near the present VEPCO pole.

When the church was rebuilt during the pastorate of the Rev. D. W. Jackson, my mother, Bessie Ironmonger, took pictures of the church and some were sold to help defray the construction costs. As late as 1984, I still had a picture of the church which showed that grave with its unusual markings. Because of the elements over the years, the wooden objects deteriorated and that grave is now lost.

Whose grave was it? I always understood that a little girl in a family in transit by water became ill and died in this Seaford community. This was a Catholic family but there was no Catholic Church (or priest of that denomination) in the county then. Evidently local church folks put into practice their Christian principles and helped this family in distress. The little child was buried here and the family moved on. Hence, the Cross, a symbol of their Catholicism and the oar, to represent the waterways, marked her grave for probably twenty-five or more years.

My Mother came to live with me in 1977. One night between 1980 and 1985, a strange man came to my house, seeking information about the grave of a young girl who had died many years before. He had inquired at the governmental offices in Yorktown and Vivian Smoot referred him to Mama and me.

The man was interested in genealogy. He knew the name of the girl and that she had died here. It seems that the Tignor, Chandler, and Llewellyn families had been the local persons who had gotten help for these strangers enroute to another destination. We assured him that she was buried in sacred ground and that her grave had never been desecrated. We failed to write down any names or information about this family.

True Christianity extends to include the "stranger within our gates" and followers remember the lessons from the Bible when Jesus said, "In as much as ye did it unto others in need, ye did it to me." Yes, Zion United Methodist Church met this particular need.

Epilog: Through the Eyes of Thelma Hansford, Seaford Virginia

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd wind slowly o'er the lea,
The plowman homeward plods his weary way
And leaves the world to darkness, and to me.

Beneath the shade of trees and turfs of earth,
Each in his narrow spot forever laid",
The forefathers of the community sleep.

"And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave
Awaits alike th' inevitable hour:
The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

These lines from Thomas Gray's "Elegy, Written in a County Churchyard" written in 1750, still fittingly express my sentiment as I reverently walk about this quiet and serene churchyard. The connotation "church graveyard" seems to me to carry more meaning than just "cemetery" for it definitely links a departed person to a "family in Christ" or a "congregation."

One need only stroll through any rural churchyard to be reminded that here are the mortal remains of persons like ourselves who worshipped in or were related in some way to that particular church. Once upon a time in each instance, grieving relatives stood at the open graves and left their loved ones "to await the Resurrection Morn."

Looking across this burial site, I am reminded of certain interesting incidents and circumstances related to the demise of some interred here. Any death or separation from the family is painful but violent and unexpected deaths seem unusually poignant.

Note the drownings: Norris Slight grew up on Chisman's Creek. He was considered an excellent swimmer, yet when his body and that of John (Jack) Graves were found they were locked together. I don't know the circumstances of the tragedy. It happened November 10, 1894 in the lower Back Creek and York River. Slight was twenty-two years old. Graves was twenty-four. Both are buried here on opposite sides of the old church site.

Right at the entrance to the cemetery and next to the walkway are two Cluverius graves. (No one by that name is a resident of Seaford today or a communicant of Zion United Methodist Church.) Long ago, John Gilbert Cluverius was a devout member and custodian of the church. He married Catherine Belvin Dudley, widow. John Gilbert Cluverius was born in 1839 and died in September 1895. Catherine Cluverius was born in 1833 and died in 1901.

Catherine Cluverius had only one child (by a former marriage) William Thomas Dudley Jr. born 1853. The obituary in a Hampton newspaper at the time stated that he "drowned in a storm and was buried Friday, the 18th of August 1899 at Zion Methodist Church in Seaford." It stated further that he was a merchant and "had worked for J. E. Crockett and Co., General Merchants, but for the past five years he had been conducting a business for himself." He was buried at Zion where many friends assembled to pay "the last tribute of respect." (The mercantile business was on the corner of Seaford and Wood's Roads.) The grave of William Thomas Dudley Jr., 1853-1899, is not marked. It probably is somewhere near his mother's - there beside the walkway.

On January 6, 1909, the waters between Hampton Roads and York County claimed the lives of two young Seaford Lads: Bob Richardson, age thirteen years, and his brother Earl Richardson age fifteen years. These boys drowned enroute from Hampton to Seaford. The John Richardson family lived on Back Creek Road where the residence of the late Dabney Hudgins was built. (Hudgins' grand-daughter, Gayle Akers lives there now.) Two local adults, Frank Moore and Marvin Lindsay, were returning to their York County homes in Lindsay's boat; these young boys were merely "passengers" returning from a "trip" to Hampton. Trouble developed and the lads drowned. They are buried in the mid-section of Zion Church Cemetery. At the time of their funerals, this was behind the church and very near the building. In my youth, from the choir loft of Zion Methodist Church, I could easily see the graves of these young persons and recall the account of their deaths as told to me by my father, Wesley Ironmonger.

George Teagle, at age thirty-nine years, drowned January 5, 1910 and it was not until April that his body was recovered from the York River. I have understood that the sail in his vessel broke, swung around and knocked him overboard, probably half-conscious. He was considered a good swimmer and an able waterman. He was my father's first cousin. Family members said that an enlarged picture of this young man hung on the wall at his home. His dog, upon seeing that picture, definitely "grieved." George Teagle's grave is beside those of his parents in the far corner of this cemetery.

Around the time that I graduated from high school (1926), my father worked in Chesapeake Bay as a pound fisherman. My grandfather and his three sons owned a large boat for this business called "The Murphey." My uncles married and moved from York County; this enterprise ended. "The Murphey" was sold to Lloyd Richardson.

The Richardson family lived across Back Creek Road from the former homesite of the John Richardson family. These were cousins. On March 30-31, 1928 Lloyd Richardson and Coleman Gibbs were traveling down the York River when the boat struck a high wave and landed hard on a broken off pound pole. It soon sank; both attempted to swim to the shore - Gibbs made it safely, landing on the Gloucester side of the river. Nightfall approached early in March, so it was not until the next day that the local men began the search for Lloyd Richardson. He was found before mid-day, clutching the nets in a pound in York River. He had perished; he had not drowned. He was born November 10, 1893 and died March 31, 1928. He is buried with other members of his family and his grave is marked with a stone. He was survived by his wife, two small children, and an aged mother. His death was a real tragedy for he had survived active duty in World War I, only to have his life cut short accidentally here at home. In World War I, the young men of Seaford, "answered the call" which meant that all unmarried males over the age of eighteen were drafted into military service. Hanging on the wall of the church was a large American Flag and there was a blue star affixed in some way to represent each young man from Seaford. (There were probably twenty blue stars.) When there was a casualty, the blue star was replaced with a gold star. Each of these young soldiers is buried in this cemetery.

Carlise Stroud and Norris Hogge died in camp soon after the draft. Pneumonia and the influenza epidemic swept through the military installations. Floyd White was wounded in battle and died October 17, 1918 in France. I was in the store-post office when the message from the War Department, (now Defense Department) came over the telephone lines, notifying the White family about this casualty. (I ran all the way home to tell my parents; I was eight years old.)

The fighting in France was vicious and people were very tired and anxious by November 11, 1918, when it was known that an armistice would be signed "somewhere in France" on a train at eleven o'clock that day; meanwhile fighting continued until that hour. During that morning, Coleman Hornsby was killed in battle! {Date on stone is November 13, 1918.}

These two servicemen were buried "overseas", but eventually, their bodies were returned home and funerals for each were held in Zion Methodist Church. They were buried in "the church yard." (Incidentally, at that time (1918-1920) there were no "funeral homes" in York County though we did have "undertakers.") When those caskets, with military escorts, were returned to Seaford, they were placed inside the church. It was also a custom then that people "sat up all night with the dead." So, concerned men of Seaford did stay with the corpses inside the church during the nights before the funeral services and burials. I attended all four of those funerals.

Incidentally, seven other of those World War I veterans from Zion Church lived out their normal span of life and are buried here in this cemetery. Two survived their battle wounds.

In 1923, there were very few telephones in Seaford. Most of the outside calls came to the local store and post office, operated then by C. J. Slight. Soon the "word was spread" (to use a local expression) that "a man up North had been murdered and his body was being shipped to Seaford for burial." The name Horace Hamilton meant nothing to me, but my closest neighbor, Mrs. Slight was "kin to the man!"

Seaford really was rural back then and Zion Methodist Church was a "focal point" for diversion as well as worship. So, when the funeral for Dr. Horace Hamilton, born April 14, 1894, died August 27, 1923, was held in the church, I attended. (I was thirteen years old and I well remember it - I even recall the orange colored dress that I wore that day.)

Dr. Hamilton was a dentist whose practice was in Ohio. He was the grandson of James Foster and his wife Martha Davis Foster and the great-grandson of Christopher Davis and his wife Elizabeth Hunley James Davis. So, he was considered a native of Seaford. He was murdered at age twenty-nine years; his throat had been cut with a razor. (The funeral director had tried to conceal the wound with cotton padding.) He was unmarried. Seaford Baptist Church has been built on the site of the Johnny Foster home. (There are no Fosters residing here now.)

It was rumored that another young girl buried in this cemetery had died under "suspicious circumstances." Nancy Hornsby, the daughter of William Hornsby (1826-1888) and Maria Burt Hornsby (1839-1924) was born soon after the Civil War. She was about twelve years old; she and another playmate were allegedly fed peaches laced with poison. Both girls died. No charges were ever brought against a neighbor. Nancy Hornsby is buried in the Hornsby section near the driveway on the east side. Her grave is not marked with a stone.

It was a natural thing for Seaford men to earn their livelihood harvesting the various fisheries. With Back Creek, Chisman's Creek, York River, Poquoson River, and the Chesapeake Bay, the opportunities for employment were ever present; but each phase of the waterman's occupation was fraught with hard work and hazards. There were accidents as well as drownings.

There are laws that govern the seafood industries and seasons; also, limits and specifications are designated for working in these waters. Dredging season for the blue crab opened the first of December and lasted only three or four months. A large fleet of dredge boats, each carrying a crew of three or four men, operated out of Back Creek. Sometimes they came in from the bay nightly, sometimes they went to Cape Charles; other times they tied up in Hampton, depending on the weather and where they labored.

In early February 1920, William Hudson Hansford, a nineteen year old young man, while working on his family's dredge boat, was fatally injured. His pants became caught in a moving dredge, causing his leg to be crushed. The boat captain hastened to Hampton and Dixie Hospital, but he died. That was February 8, 1920 (he was my late husband's brother). Huddie, as he was called, is buried with other members of his family in the front part of this cemetery.

Some years later, (in 1931), James Robert (Billy) Hogge, another local young man, suffered a boating accident on a "work boat." He was twenty-four years old and he is buried in "the new part" which actually is no longer "new", but in the part that Zion Church added later at the back of the original churchyard. Beside Billy is the grave of his brother George Sherman Hogge, likewise an accident victim, but this was caused by an automobile. Sherman Hogge, aged twenty years and William (Willie) Richardson, aged twenty-eight years, were passengers in the rumble seat of a car enroute to Newport News from Seaford. There was no Route 17 then, instead the dirt road wound through Harpersville, past Pollard's Florist and the Langslow Farm and joined Warwick Road near Morrison. On a swampy corner in that road, the car turned over, and both young men died from head injuries. Sherman Hogge (born 1916, died January 1936) and Willie Richardson (born June 4, 1908, died January 26, 1936) are buried near each other here in the quiet back area of this cemetery.

In 1976, a little boy, dressed in new fall clothes, happily ran across Seaford Road to show these to close relatives. David Lee Hogge, age seven years, failed to note an approaching automobile and his injuries were fatal. September 11, 1976, a young life was snuffed out accidentally. He was buried here near other relatives, not far from the creek line.

The untimely death of Lisa Mills, sixteen years of age, the result of a car accident, June 16, 1982, stunned this church fellowship and this community. She was an active participant in youthful activities. One needs only to observe her grave, midway this cemetery, to realize that she is still remembered and loved.

The most recent automobile casualty interred here was Todd Repass, a promising young man who died July 1, 1989. He also rests midway in this cemetery. (I did not know him, but I grieve when society loses the potentials of such a highly regarded young man.)

Upon entering this cemetery, one soon realizes that the graves nearest the front are of those earliest communicants of Zion United Methodist Church. Almost on the front row one finds the Parker family plot. Indianna Parker Hogg, daughter of Henry William Parker and Mazelia Callis Parker, was born June 15, 1867. She married John Allen Hogg by whom she had three children. He died and she married George Hogg and had another son. At the age of thirty-four years her life was ended by a bolt of lightning July 24, 1901. She is buried beside her first husband. Incidentally, all four of her children and many of their descendants are also interred throughout this grave yard.

In addition to the fatal accidents which I have noted, I feel compelled to mention four other less than normal deaths. We the living, are not always aware of the pain being experienced by some others. Death to these is a release from the burdens of life caused by acute illnesses, emotional exhaustion, and even grief. There are three who resorted to suicide entombed here in this old cemetery. Another person, a mother of three small children, was the victim of a vicious attack. She lived the remainder of her life (to age 29 years) in a mental hospital. Her aggressor was tried in the Elizabeth City County, Virginia Courts - was convicted and hanged. Each of these might have said:

Come, Sweet Death
Come, blessed rest;
My heart for Thee is yearning.
My Soul to Thee returning;
O, Father, give me peace.
Grant me Thy sweet release;
Receive me to Thy breast,
Come, blessed rest.
(L. Hansen and J. S. Bach)

The anguish and grief borne at the time of these numerous burials have diminished and most close family members themselves are gone. Walking through this cemetery periodically does assure one of the rest and the quiet peace that these interred here now have. A cemetery is not a gruesome or ghostly spot, it is a silent and serene place where we, the living, can recall and remember the activities, the accomplishments, and the contributions of "persons" long "gone home." They were people, who loved and lived during good and bad times. Their legacy is for us to enjoy and pass on to the next generations. Indeed the earth here is sacred to their memory.

Just as "all Gaul was divided into parts", so this venerable church named Zion United Methodist has parts too. The building, the cemetery, the congregation of believers coalesced since 1822, continues to be a vibrant factor and a monument of Christianity in the Seaford community of York County, Virginia.

(This paper does not include anything relative to the Ballentine Cemetery or about any older person who was buried in the church yard.)
